St. John Oakland Hospital

St. John Oakland Hospital (SJOH) is located at Dequindre and 11 Mile Road in Madison Heights. SJOH is a 210-bed, acute care, osteopathic teaching hospital, affiliated with Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine and Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine.

With over 400 medical staff members and more than 35 medical and surgical specialties, SJOH provides the community with quality, efficient care right in their neighborhood. Patient care has been enhanced with the renovation and expansion of the hospital's Emergency Department, the addition of a chest pain clinic and a new pharmacy that services its employees and members of the community. The hospital also offers first-rate residency training in emergency medicine and eleven other specialties.

Specialty areas focus on providing advanced diagnostics and treatment for cancer, cardiac, psychiatric and aging patients in a family-friendly, comfortable setting. SJOH offers many specialty areas, some of which include critical care and family practice, pulmonary treatment, orthopedics, ophthalmology, occupational therapy and senior services. SJOH also serves as the base hospital for the Madison Heights and Hazel Park Fire and EMS personnel.

Who Benefits From Your Generosity?

This year's Taste Fest proceeds will go toward the purchase of an enhanced nurse response system to assist St. John Oakland Hospital in providing the highest possible quality of care. The new system will allow our clinical staff to respond more rapidly to patient needs, and will be less disruptive so that fewer patients are disturbed when we are assisting others.

As in years past, a portion of the proceeds from this event will also go to support youth programs within the City of Madison Heights as we continue to support the community within which we serve. Funds are earmarked for Friends of Madison Heights Youth and Madison Heights Youth Assistance, Inc.
