

More stories have happy endings,
thanks to the compassion and commitment of St. John Health nurses.

From the day a patient arrives you attend to them, taking charge of their care. Most days you are the face they see, the voice they hear, and the hands they feel.

their concerns, and calm their fears.

Your extra dedication is not taught in any medical text book, but it makes a big difference when you are healing the whole person.

The patient's well-being is your highest concern. Your knowledge and clinical skills are without compare.

And yet, you go further. Taking time to talk with patients, to understand all of Each day you show us all what a passion for healing means through your words and actions. For all of this, and more, we want to say thank you.
